

WE'RE THE FIRST TO ADMIT THAT LIBERALS ARE STILL TAKING TRIPS.

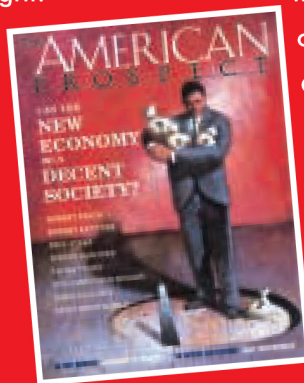

Some people think liberals are still a way out group. And, in some ways they're right.

But instead of taking just metaphysical journeys, liberals today are seeking other, more fulfilling ways to expand their horizons.

In fact, accomplished liberals spend on all the same things other affluent people do: exotic vacations, luxury cars, computer equipment, investments and more.

Reaching liberals is easier than searching your nearest coffeehouse. They can be found reading The American Prospect, a magazine written by liberals for liberals. There isn't another publication like it. Which is why so many of today's leading opinion makers in business, politics and academia consider it a must-read.

Get your message in The American Prospect, and reach an influential group of individuals who may no longer be tripping to the likes of The Jefferson Airplane, but who certainly are going places.
